1. Welcome to day 105 without a White House briefing. Today the #shadowbriefing is broadcasting from beautiful Maine, where Susan Collins will be spending much more time in the very near future. For the newcomers, the Shadow Briefing surfaces all the important questions the WH

2. refuses to answer and attempts to answer those questions how they would--if they were telling the truth. Let me start today by detailing some of the things the White House is doing in reaction to many of the stories over the weekend about the horrid and dangerous conditions

3. children at the border are being held in. Let me emphasize that we are doing these things only because of the stories, not because the WH has done anything wrong. We'll come back to that. First, responding to the criticism of conditions at these camps, Presidential adviser

4. and architect of this barbaric policy Stephen Miller will forgo brushing his teeth for the next three days thereby proving that children don't need toothbrushes. @PressSec will not use soap for the next three days again proving how easy it is to survive without the basics

5. of sanitary care. And finally, @KellyannePolls will give up her bed to prove that children don't need beds. For the record she will be sleeping on the couch thus giving her husband a rare respite from said couch. There has been some speculation that @realDonaldTrump will

6. forgo the regular changing of his diaper, but those details have not been worked out quite yet. To simulate the children taking care of children phenomena, the white supremacists at the WH will be taking care of the Neo-Nazi's. News has also started to leak out about

7. @IvankaTrump and @jaredkushner trip to the region. Ivanka will be carrying with her all the half used soap and shampoo containers from Trump properties around the country. Of course the Trump organization will be charging the US government at a markup rate of $400 per bottle

8. Jared's role in this effort will be as undefined as everything else he does in the White House, so don't expect him to actually do anything. Now, both Ivanka and Jared will not be actually visiting the centers holding the children in unsanitary conditions. That would be a big
